Article 1 of FAO Constitution

The Organization shall collect, analyse, interpret and disseminate information relating to nutrition, food and agriculture. In this Constitution, the term "agriculture" and its derivatives include fisheries, marine products, forestry and primary forestry products.

The Sustainable Development Goals

At the historic UN General Assembly Summit in September 2015, the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development was adopted by the UN's 193 member states. The 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and their 169 targets are part of this agenda.

The Sustainable Development Goals are a bold, universal agreement to end poverty and all its dimensions and craft an equal, just and secure world – for people, planet and prosperity.

The SDGs have been developed through an unprecedented consultative process that brought national governments and millions of citizens from the globe together to negotiate and adopt this ambitious agenda.

FAO and the SDGs

FAO has played a key role in the post 2015 development agenda process and has been an active contributor to the Inter-agency and Expert Group on Sustainable Development Goal indicators. Its Strategic Objectives are aligned to achieving the SDGs relevant to its work.

FAO focuses on monitoring of six goals: SDGs 2, 5, 6, 12, 14 and 15. Compiling the globally agreed indicators to monitor the progress on the SDGs is a great challenge for member countries with regard to their current data availability, statistical capacity and resource capability.

FAO is therefore assisting countries through actions that will help mainstream the goals in national development planning, implement activities to achieve them, and monitor and report progress through globally agreed indicators.

Indicators and a sample of FAO actions for these six goals are included in this booklet.

As custodian of the 21 indicators attached to the goals, FAO is engaged in methodological development and providing technical assistance to countries to build their statistical capacity. A dedicated web portal will be established to report national data on indicators under this custodianship.

In addition, FAO flagship publications are being upgraded to meet the SDG global reporting requirements.
