Agroecology: integrating animals in agroecosystems

Guest editors: B. Dumont and A. Bernués

>> 19 articles including 6 review articles >> 93 authors from 21 countries >> authors from 44 research institutes / universities >> 6 papers freely available online

Special offer
Free access to the complete issue for 30 days at: journals.cambridge.org/trial with offer code: AGRO2014

How agroecology principles contribute to the design of innovative, adaptive and resilient farming systems in ruminants, pigs, horses and aquaculture across temperate, Mediterranean and tropical areas

Stress the need for holistic and inter-disciplinary research involving animal scientists, ecologists, economists and sociologists

Call for new approach for the whole research - development - innovation chain to bridge the gap between science and practice