

Landings by fishing area from all resources classified as overexploited or depleted in 1992 (Southeast Pacific excluded)

The catches of several marine fish stocks classified as overexploited peaked some 30 years ago. But commercial fishers are still using gear and techniques that oblige them to discard nearly 25 percent of what they catch every year.