

Number of hungry people rising

The absolute number of chronically undernourished people rose between 1990-92 and 1994-96 in three out of five developing regions of the world. This was mainly because there has been little progress in reducing poverty. The largest number of undernourished people are in Asia.

