

LIVESTOCK AS A SOURCE OF POWER IN THE FIELDS

Draught animal power is the most important source of power in the fields in developing countries. FAO estimates that 52 percent of the cultivated land in developing countries – excluding China – is farmed with oxen, buffalo, horses and other draught animals.

DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

DEVELOPED COUNTRIES

Draught animal power

Hand labour

Tractors

