36th Session of the Committee on Methods of Analysis and Sampling

Annex on practical examples on sampling (Principles for the use of sampling and testing in international trade (CAC/GL 83-2013))

11. In regard to the work of the Committee on Methods of Analysis and Sampling on the development of practical examples on sampling plans related to, amongst others, pesticide residues as an Annex to the Principles for the use of sampling and testing in international trade, the 46th Session of the Committee on Pesticide Residues (May 2014) had noted that work on sampling plans and methods of analysis for the determination of pesticide residues in food and feed was within the remit of CCPR. Therefore, the Committee agreed to request CCMAS to clarify the nature of this work and the potential implications for CCPR.⁹

12. In considering practical examples, the 36th Session of CCMAS (February 2015) agreed to inform other Codex committees that the practical examples would not interfere with sampling and testing procedures developed by other committees, but show how samples taken according to the procedures developed by those committees could be used for the decision making process.¹⁰

29th Session of the Committee on General Principles

Consistency of risk analysis texts

13. The 29th Session of CCGP (March 2015) agreed not to discuss the consistency of the risk analysis texts across the relevant Committees and agreed to consider this item at its next session based on a document that is to be prepared by the Codex Secretariat.¹¹

Appendix IGuidance on information documents

i. It is recognised that there is the occasional need for Codex committees to make available information documents, however Codex committees should not deliberately develop such documents and these documents should be by-products of ongoing work of the Committee.

ii. Documents are considered to be information documents if they:

- have been developed and agreed upon by a Codex committee;
- have been determined by the Committee to contain information that is useful to national governments and/or Codex members and observers and Codex committees; and
- are not considered appropriate by the Committee to be adopted as Codex standards, guidelines or codes of practice or as recommendations for inclusion in the Procedural Manual.

iii. Information documents will be made available on the Codex website of the relevant committee, clearly separated from official Codex documents and adopted texts.
