

FAO's Knowledge Exchange and Capacity Building Division has been developing e-learning materials for FAO Member States in various technical areas within its core mandate.

FAO has collaborated with external partners since 2001 to develop a series of extensive self-paced e-learning courses which are delivered free of charge on CD and over the Web.

The following e-learning programmes have been developed in collaboration with FAO technical divisions and external institutions, with funding from various donors and partners:

Information Management Resource Kit:

E-learning modules to build capacity at national and local levels to manage and share information more effectively. The modules target individuals responsible for information management in food security and agricultural agencies, institutions and networks. Funded by FAO and a wide range of partners.

www.imarkgroup.org

European Union

Food Security Information for Action:

A series of e-learning courses on the collection, management, analysis and reporting of food security information. The target audience includes technical professionals as well as policy formulators and programme managers monitoring progress in poverty reduction, and meeting food security goals and targets. Funded by the European Union.

www.foodsec.org

The Right to Adequate Food:

A series of e-learning materials to support the progressive realization of the right to adequate food. The course is targeted for use by FAO and UN staff, duty bearers at national level, as well as NGOs, civil society organizations and social movements dealing with human rights. Funded by the Government of Germany.

www.fao.org/righttofood

Enhancing Participation in Codex Activities:

An e-learning course which explains the organization, management and procedures of the Codex Alimentarius Commission, and provides guidance on developing national Codex structures and activities. The course targets government officials, as well as representatives of food industry, consumer groups, and observer organizations. Funded by FAO.

www.codexalimentarius.net

