Organizational Setting

The Forestry Policy and Resources Division provides services to member countries on matters relating to the forest assessment, development, management, conservation, restoration and protection of forests, trees, water, mountains, biodiversity, wildlife and related natural resources as well as for providing a neutral forum for the discussion of such topics.

Other topics of interest for the Division are agroforestry, urban forestry, and forests and climate change, including Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation (REDD+).

The United Nations Programme on Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation in Developing Countries (UN-REDD Programme) is a collaboration programme between FAO, UNDP and UNEP. Within the partnership, FAO supports countries on technical issues related to national forest monitoring systems (NFMS), the development of cost effective and reliable Measurement, Reporting and Verification (MRV) processes and tools for emission reductions, forest reference levels and forest reference emission levels, as well as on forest governance, tenure and legal issues in the context of REDD+ activities. The UN-REDD Programme is growing rapidly. The Organization therefore wishes to recruit a UN-REDD technical advisor to support all member countries in their efforts to develop Forest Reference Emission Levels and/or Forest Reference Levels for REDD+ to ensure technical consistency with the guidance provided by the UNFCCC and develop and implement improvements over time, and lease with other Organisation's efforts in in this areas for knowledge sharing and coordination.

The post is located in the FAO sub-regional Office for Latin-America and the Caribbean (Panama City, Panama).

Reporting Lines
