An online survey on the impacts of the training events in integrating nutrition and food security programming

The project team has launched an online survey directed to all professionals who participated in the regional training events on "Integrating nutrition and food security programming" organised for the Horn of Africa in February 2014 in Kenya. The survey has been designed to capture feedback from the participants on what has been the direct impact of the new knowledge and skills they gained, to understand which actions have been initiated after the workshop and to assess what further support they need from the project team. NEW RESOURCES ON THE PROJECT WEBSITE

Learning from each other: more than 30 good practices sheets now online

A few months ago, while preparing the two regional training workshops held in Nairobi and Dakar, the project team asked potential participants to share experiences in their organisations to identify good practices in integrated nutrition and food security programming. Many good practices sheets were received. Thanks again to all of you! To make the most of this wealth of information, selected good practices sheets are now available on our website. It is a good opportunity to learn what is or has been done in other countries or by other organisations and we encourage you to consult them and continue to share your best practices using the good practices sheet template a vailable on the website.
