

Responsible governance of tenure

Course: Addressing corruption in the tenure of land, fisheries and forests

©Creative Commons Zero (CC0) license

This course provides an overview of corrupt practices in the tenure sector. It analyses the drivers and impact of corruption on the livelihoods and food security of poor and vulnerable people. It also introduces a series of options and tools that key players, including states, organizations and citizens can utilize to identify, assess and tackle corruption.

2 Hours

Available in English, French and Spanish

You will learn about

- Most common forms of corruption in the tenure of land, fisheries and forests
- Drivers and impact of corruption on economy, society and environment
- Tools to assess corruption
- Examples of anti-corruption measures
- Roles of UN agencies, governments, CSOs, private sector and media in tackling corruption

Who is the course for?

The curriculum primarily addresses “change agents” - i.e. people who can have a direct impact by introducing changes in how tenure is governed. They include national policy makers and administrators, surveyors, trainers, legal support providers, civil society and non-governmental organizations, advocacy, control and monitoring professionals.

Key partners

This course was developed under the EU-FAO Programme on “Improved Global Governance for Hunger Reduction”, funded by the European Union (EU) and implemented by FAO.

It is part of an e-learning curriculum to support the implementation of the Voluntary Guidelines on Responsible Governance of Tenure of Land, Fisheries and Forests, in the context of National Food Security.
