Preface

The need for improved channels of worldwide communication of information has been at the forefront of attention in developed and developing countries alike since the beginning of the information explosion two decades ago. The international community recognizes that wider access to available knowledge and the creation of new knowledge for the benefit of all can hardly be achieved without assisting the developing countries to strengthen their collective self-reliance and cooperation among themselves.

A United Nations Conference was convened in Buenos Aires in the summer of 1978 for the specific purpose of discussing how technical cooperation among developing countries could be fostered. It was recognized that it was the role of the United Nations development system to promote and operationally and financially support all kinds of technical cooperation activities that will assist governments to share technology for their mutual development. In its respective fields of endeavour, each specialized body of the United Nations system is attempting to develop new ideas and approaches, to undertake useful studies and analyses and to support the strengthening of regional institutions through the creation and extension of regional links between national institutions -- all to this end.

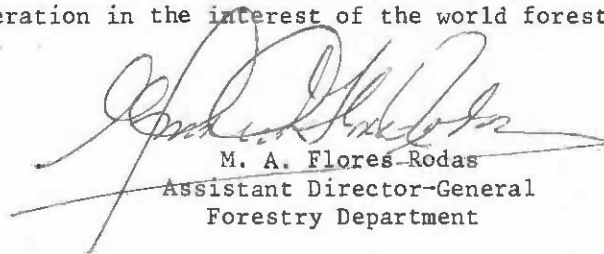

The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations attaches great importance to carrying out activities conducive to assisting technical cooperation especially among developing countries. The AGRIS Forestry World Catalogue of Information and Documentation Services contains the contributions of 427 national and international institutions concerned with forestry information in over 90 countries. More than an international information tool, it is the fruit of international sharing and cooperation in the interest of the world forestry community.

Préface

La nécessité d'améliorer les voies par lesquelles l'information est acheminée dans le monde entier a reçu une attention prioritaire de la part des pays tant développés qu'en développement depuis le début de l'explosion de l'information il y a une vingtaine d'années. La communauté internationale reconnaît qu'il ne sera guère possible d'améliorer l'accès aux connaissances disponibles ni d'augmenter les connaissances pour le bien de tous sans aider les pays en développement à renforcer leur autodépendance collective et leur intercoopération.

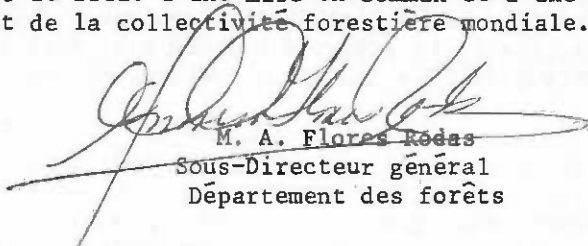

Une Conférence des Nations Unies a été convoquée à Buenos Aires durant l'été 1978 dans le but spécifique d'examiner comment on pourrait encourager la coopération technique entre pays en développement. A cette conférence, il a été reconnu qu'il incombait au système de développement des Nations Unies de promouvoir et d'appuyer, tant en ce qui concerne les opérations que le financement, tous les types d'activités et de coopération techniques susceptibles d'aider les gouvernements à s'associer sur le plan de la technologie aux fins de leur développement mutuel. Chacune des institutions spécialisées du système des Nations Unies essaie, dans son domaine d'action respectif, de mettre au point de nouvelles idées et de nouvelles approches, d'entreprendre des études et des analyses utiles, de soutenir et de renforcer les institutions régionales en créant ou développant au niveau régional des liens entre les institutions nationales.

L'Organisation des Nations Unies pour l'Alimentation et l'Agriculture tient beaucoup à mener des activités propres à aider la coopération technique, en particulier entre les pays en développement. Quatre cent vingt sept institutions nationales et internationales s'occupant de l'information forestière dans plus de 90 pays ont contribué au Catalogue mondial des services d'information et de documentation préparé pour AGRIS Foresterie. Plus qu'un instrument international d'information, ce catalogue est le fruit d'une mise en commun et d'une coopération au niveau international dans l'intérêt de la collectivité forestière mondiale.

Prólogo

La necesidad de mejorar en todo el mundo los canales de comunicación de la información ha estado en el primer plano de la atención de los países desarrollados y en desarrollo, desde que comenzó la explosión informativa hace dos decenios. La comunidad internacional reconoce que difícilmente puede conseguirse un acceso más amplio a los conocimientos disponibles y la creación de nuevos conocimientos en beneficio de todos, si no se ayuda a los países en desarrollo a reforzar su confianza en los propios medios y la cooperación entre ellos.

En el verano de 1978, se convocó en Buenos Aires una Conferencia de las Naciones Unidas con la finalidad específica de estudiar el modo de fomentar la cooperación técnica entre los países en desarrollo. Se reconoció que es competencia del sistema de desarrollo de las Naciones Unidas promover y apoyar operativa y financieramente todo tipo de actividades de cooperación técnica orientadas a que los gobiernos compartan tecnologías para ayudarse mutuamente en el desarrollo. Con esta finalidad, cada uno de los organismos especializados del sistema de las Naciones Unidas, en sus esferas respectivas de interés, está tratando de desarrollar nuevas ideas y métodos, emprender estudios y análisis útiles, y apoyar el fortalecimiento de instituciones regionales mediante la creación y extensión de vínculos regionales entre instituciones nacionales.

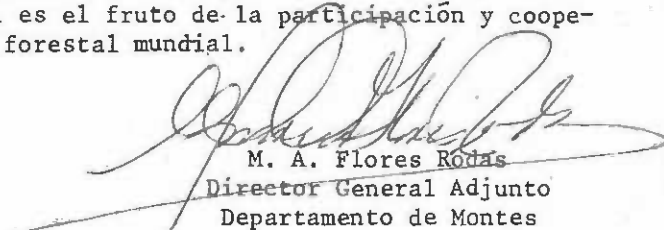

La Organización de las Naciones Unidas para la Agricultura y la Alimentación concede gran importancia a la realización de actividades que fomentan la cooperación técnica, especialmente entre países en desarrollo. El Catálogo Mundial de Servicios de Información y Documentación preparado por AGRIS Forestal contiene las aportaciones de 427 instituciones nacionales e internacionales que se ocupan de información forestal, en más de 90 países. Más que un instrumento de información internacional es el fruto de la participación y cooperación internacionales, en interés de la comunidad forestal mundial.

Introduction

The AGRIS Forestry World Catalogue of Information and Documentation Services is a tri-lingual directory to services concerned with forestry and forest products in over 90 countries. The entries listed in English or French or Spanish are the result of a World Survey of Information and Documentation Services, carried out in 1978. They are arranged by country and contain information such as the types of services available to users, conditions of access to them, subject and geographic coverage of the documentation, classification systems used, languages in which the documentation and information are available.

Why an "AGRIC Forestry" World Catalogue?

AGRIC, the International Information System for Agricultural Sciences and Technology, is coordinated by FAO. It has been providing governmental bodies, international organizations, industry, educational institutions, individual researchers and extension workers with a monthly data base covering conventional and non-conventional literature in seventeen major areas of agriculture, fisheries, nutrition, rural development and -- forestry. At present, over 100 national, international and multinational participating centres cooperate in this system.

Since 1973, there have been efforts to create an information network for forestry and forest products within the AGRIC framework. The preparation of an inventory of existing documentation and information services around the world was one of the first tasks deemed necessary by the experts and representatives of the interested sectors of the world forestry community participating in the three technical consultations held to date.

The present volume represents one of the results of those efforts.

Introduction

AGRIC Foresterie, Catalogue mondial des services d'information et de documentation est un répertoire trilingue des services s'occupant de foresterie et de produits forestiers dans plus de 90 pays. Les données, indiquées en anglais, en français ou en espagnol, proviennent d'une Enquête mondiale concernant les services d'information et de documentation, effectuée en 1978. Elles sont classées par pays et contiennent des informations telles que les types de services fournis aux usagers, les conditions d'accès à ces services, la couverture par sujets et géographique de la documentation, les systèmes de classification utilisés, les langues dans lesquelles la documentation et l'information sont disponibles.

Pourquoi un Catalogue mondial "AGRIC Foresterie"?

AGRIC, le Système international d'information pour les sciences et la technologie agricoles, est coordonné par la FAO. Il fournit aux organismes gouvernementaux, aux organisations internationales, à l'industrie, aux établissements d'enseignement, aux chercheurs et aux vulgarisateurs, des données bibliographiques mensuelles relatives à la littérature conventionnelle et non-conventionnelle dans dix-sept domaines importants de l'agriculture, des pêches, de la nutrition, du développement rural et de la foresterie. Plus de 100 centres nationaux, internationaux et multinationaux participent actuellement à ce système.

Depuis 1973, des efforts ont été déployés en vue de créer un réseau d'information pour la foresterie et les produits forestiers dans le cadre d'AGRIS. La préparation d'un inventaire des services existants de documentation et d'information dans le monde entier a été l'une des premières tâches jugées nécessaires par les experts et les représentants des secteurs intéressés de la communauté forestière mondiale qui ont participé aux trois consultations techniques tenues jusqu'à ce jour.

Le présent volume constitue un des résultats de ces efforts.

Introducción

El Catálogo Mundial "AGRIS Forestal" de los Servicios de Información y Documentación es una guía trilingüe de los servicios que, en más de noventa países, se ocupan de los productos forestales y la silvicultura. Las voces citadas en inglés, francés o español son el resultado de una encuesta mundial realizada en 1978 sobre servicios de información y documentación. Están ordenadas por países, y contienen información sobre los tipos de servicios que pueden utilizar los usuarios, las condiciones para acceder a ellos, los temas y lugares geográficos abarcados por la documentación, los sistemas de clasificación utilizados, y los idiomas en que se facilita la documentación y la información.

Por qué un catálogo mundial "AGRIS Forestal"?

El Sistema Internacional de Información sobre Ciencias y Tecnología Agrícolas, AGRIS, está coordinado por la FAO, y proporciona a los organismos estatales, las organizaciones internacionales, la industria, los centros de enseñanza, los investigadores y los agentes de extensión, una base de datos mensuales de publicaciones convencionales y no convencionales en diecisiete sectores importantes de la agricultura, la pesca, la nutrición, el desarrollo rural y los bosques. En el momento actual cooperan con este sistema más de cien centros nacionales, internacionales y multinacionales.

Desde 1973 se está tratando de crear una red de información sobre bosques y productos forestales dentro del sistema AGRIS. Una de las primeras tareas que los expertos y representantes de los sectores interesados de la comunidad forestal mundial que han participado en las tres consultas técnicas celebradas hasta la fecha consideraron necesaria fue la preparación de un inventario de los servicios de información y documentación que existen en todo el mundo.

El presente volumen es uno de los resultados de esos esfuerzos.

CRIS provides coverage for most of the publicly-supported agricultural and forestry research in the United States. Input consists of project descriptions of research sponsored or conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture research agencies, the State agricultural experiment stations, State forestry schools and other cooperating State institutions. CRIS inhouse services are provided free of charge to these institutions primarily. Computer searches are performed in response to requests from users for both technical and management information. Output is in the form of computer printouts of information contained in the project descriptions. CRIS is currently available online to the general public via the Lockheed DIALOG Information Service.

Also housed within the Forest Resources Library is an information and document delivery service operating under a contract with the U.S. Forest Service PNW Experiment Station, Portland, Oregon. Formerly called PACFORNET (Pacific Coast Forestry Information Network) it has now expanded and is the Seattle Service Center of WESTFORNET (Western Forestry Network) since 1 May 1978. There are 3 other centers: at Berkeley, California; Ogden, Utah; and Fort Collins, Colorado. Purchased materials included in each MONTHLY ALERT are bought thru WESTFORNET-Berkeley and distributed to each Center; in Seattle after the high-use period of 3-6 months they are then catalogued into the Forest Resources Library collection. The Library collection is also used for the MONTHLY ALERT as well as loaned to WESTFORNET requestors. Other facets of this service are supplying loans or retention copies of any literature request, reference and referral, and on-line literature searching.
