DatabasesNew interactive database on indicators of sustainable forest management in Europe

The Timber and Forestry Programme of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) and FAO have released a new Web-based resource tool designed by the international community to enable researchers, policy-makers, practitioners and the general public to access data on Europe's forests. The database is a comprehensive research tool based on the report State of Europe's Forests 2007, and includes data that have not been published to date.

These data are presented alongside other statistical data from different parts of the UNECE work programme. The UNECE/FAO Timber Section encourages the international community to take advantage of this resource and to make suggestions for further improvement.
