

MOUNTAINS
FEED MY FOOD

Next Generation

Next time you buy a bag of rice, think about how mountains have helped to produce it! Rice needs water.

And that is provided by mountains.

Globally, 40 percent of the food we eat needs irrigation. And millions of people in the world work for it. In spite of the hard work and long hours, harvest is a happy time for the community.

Often you will see at least three generations and sometimes four handling the many activities surrounding the harvest process.

Mountains are in all the food we eat!

Photo © Lons&Quera / Flickr

Mountains in a Rio+20 world

/ www.mountainpartnership.org