

Expert workshop for the How2Guide for Bioenergy
Biomass resources and bioenergy potential in Southeast Asia

23-24 July 2014, Bangkok, Thailand

As a clean and competitive source of renewable energy, many developing and emerging economies have already integrated a substantial amount of bioenergy into their energy mix, including an increasing number of countries in Southeast Asia which are now looking to this multi-faceted energy source as a central component of their efforts to diversify their energy mix, and respond to climate change challenges.

This workshop is the second in a series of events providing inputs to the How2Guide for Bioenergy – a manual for policy and decision makers for the development and implementation of bioenergy technology roadmaps that are tailored to national frameworks, resources and capacities.

The event is jointly organised by the International Energy Agency (IEA) in the framework of the International Low-Carbon Energy Technology Platform, by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) and by the International Renewable Energy Agency (IRENA). The workshop is organized in collaboration with the Thai Ministry of Energy and with the support of Netherlands Enterprise Agency (RVO).
