

Worapat Sasibut is a project manager at OpsSmart Technologies Thailand, enterprise software development company focusing on food safety and traceability solution.

He graduated bachelor degree from Kasetsart University in Software and Knowledge Engineering and master degree from Chulalongkorn University in business administration.

He has 7 years experiences in software development and solution for food business. Starting from 2009, he worked in software development field as programmer and QA engineer. Then, he became the consultant and implement several projects from 2011 to present. His clients are in both public and private sector in the food industry i.e. farms, processors, retailers and governments.