

Bird Flu Field Reports: Crisis Management to Long-Term Strategy

ITEM	DETAILS
Sound FX	Street Market
Narration	For nearly 15 years, Doung Thi Nga has been selling poultry at a market in Vietnam. Now she is struggling to make a living because of bird flu.
Interview	Response from Doung Thi Nga, Poultry Merchant, Vietnam
Narration	In Vietnam, highly pathogenic avian influenza has decreased significantly since peaking in 2004, thanks in part to an extensive program of vaccinations and restrictions on the transport and supply of poultry. Ken Inui is a technical advisor to the Food and Agriculture Organization.
Interview	Response from Ken Inui, FAO Technical Advisor on Avian Influenza, Vietnam
Narration	Veterinarian Jeff Mariner is one of the experts coordinating an early reporting and response system for bird flu in Indonesia.
Interview	Response from Jeff Mariner, FAO Technical Advisor, Indonesia
Interview	Response from Elly Sawitri Sudiana, Head, Campaign against Avian Influenza, Indonesia
Narration	Elly Sudiana heads the Indonesian campaign against avian influenza.
Narration	At the market in Vietnam, Doung Thi Nga is hopeful.
Interview	Response from Doung Thi Nga
Sound FX	Street Market
	Field Reportage: John Riddle (FAO) FAO Correspondent: Charmaine Wilkerson Post-production: Riccardo Parenti (FAO)