The Wonders of Traditional Craft

As fisheries enters the new millennium, concern about over-exploitation of the seas and their fisheries and aquatic resources by mechanized craft is widespread. The wonders and virtues of traditional fishing craft are being re-discovered. Scientists note that craft like kattumarams and dhonis sustained small-scale fishers for decades without ravaging fishing grounds or degrading the environment. Historians are studying the origins of these craft. Artists and heritage-lovers highlight the aesthetics of traditional craft, some of which are dangerously close to extinction. The evocative sketches in this calendar, which bring to life the beauty, the economy and the uniqueness of traditional craft, are the work of BOBP artist E Amalore.

BOBP as an externally funded organisation comes to an end in 1999. At the time of writing, proposals are on to set up an inter-government organisation to continue the work of the programme. A new Programme for the region, for possible funding by the Global Environment Facility (GEF) and the World Bank, has also been mooted. We take this opportunity to wish all our readers and supporters a happy new year and a great start to the new millennium.
